LIVE 1: SEPARATES BY JENNY SAVILLE

Separates, 2001

Medium: Lithograph

26 15/16 x 37 1/2 inches, 68.4 x 95.3 cm (unframed)

Ed. 21 ex 100

(SAVIL 2001.0012)

The work features Jenny Saville leaning with her sister as if they were conjoined twins, hence the title Separates. This is the artist's first print. For her first experimentation with the new medium Saville constructs the image using multiple layers, just as she does with her paintings.

Jenny Saville (born 7 May 1970) is a contemporary British painter associated with the Young British Artists. She is known for her large-scale painted depictions of nude women. She was born in Cambridge in 1970. In 1990, during her BA course at the Glasgow School of Art, she exhibited in Contemporary '90 at the Royal College of Art. In 1992 she completed her degree as well as showing in Edinburgh and in Critics Choice at the Cooling Gallery, London. Following the success of her show at the Saatchi Gallery in 1994, which generated a great deal of publicity for her work, Saville went on to take part in the exhibition American Passion, which toured from the McLellan Gallery, Glasgow, to the Royal College of Art and the Yale Center for British Art in New Haven, Connecticut. By 1994 many people were familiar with Saville's massive paintings, such as Plan, in which a naked woman is seen from below, her body filling the canvas through a combination of physical bulk and extreme foreshortening.

She has exhibited at Museo d'Arte Contemporanea, Rome (2005); Norton Museum of Art, West Palm Beach (2012); and Modern Art Oxford (2012). Her work was included in "Sensation: Young British Artists from the Saatchi Collection," Royal Academy of Arts, London; "The Nude in 20th Century Art," Kunsthalle Emden, Germany; "Painting," Museo Correr, 50th Biennale di Venezia (2003); "Paint Made Flesh," Frist Center for the Arts, Nashville; and "Eroi," Galleria d'Arte Moderna, Torino, Italy (2011).

LIVE 3: VIP FASHION EXPERIENCE WITH PETER DUNDAS: ONE-ON-ONE LUNCH WITH PETER AND OUTFIT SELECTION FROM HIS LATEST COLLECTION FOR ROBERTO CAVALLI

Win the chance to have lunch with THE designer of the moment, Peter Dundas. Peter will then take you to Roberto Cavalli's flagship London store on Sloane Street where he will style you in an outfit from his first collection at Cavalli.

One of the most celebrated designers of his generation, Peter Dundas was appointed Creative Director of Roberto Cavalli in March 2015, directly handling the creativity for the RTW Women's, Men's and Accessories Collections, as well as the artistic direction of the Just Cavalli, Roberto Cavalli Class, Junior, and Home licences.

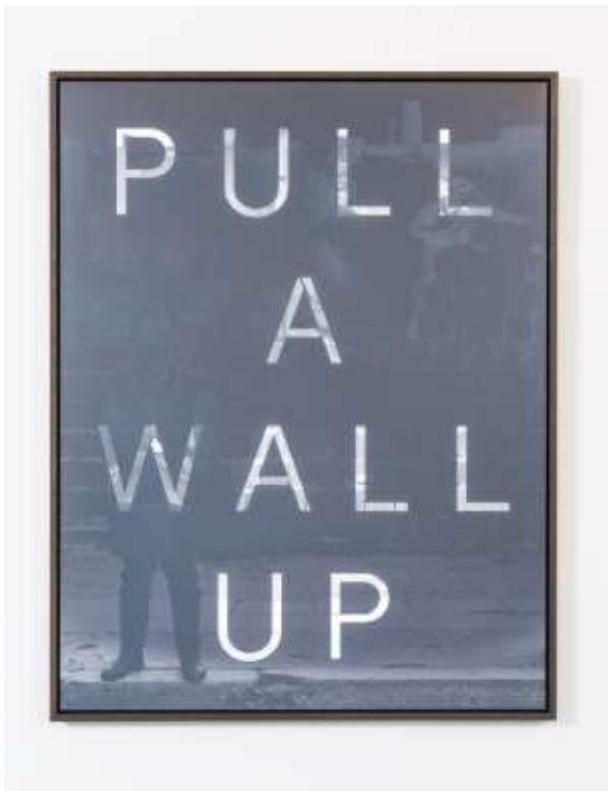

Born in Oslo, Norway, to a Norwegian father and an American mother, Dundas moved with his family to Indiana, US, when he was 14. After studying at the Parsons School of Design in New York, he began his career as an assistant costume designer for the Comedie Française in Paris, where he remained until 1992. He then became the design assistant to Jean Paul Gaultier, working at his side for eight years. In 2000 he moved to Christian Lacroix, where he was able to call upon his experience and develop his flair for striking colours and patterns. In 2002, Dundas moved to Florence for his first collaboration with Roberto Cavalli, serving as Chief Designer until 2005. After a brief experience as Creative Director at Emanuel Ungaro, in October 2008 he was appointed Artistic Director of Emilio Pucci, where he is credited with infusing a youthful, sophisticated edge to the brand. From 2008 to 2010, Dundas was also the Creative Director at French furrier Revillon, part of the Yves Salomon furrier company. He currently divides his time between the Roberto Cavalli headquarters in Florence and Paris, where he has lived for many years.

Known for his creative talent and eclectic personality, Peter Dundas is guided in his work by instinct and spontaneity, drawing his collections under the influence of his present day interests and passions. A high-end glamour appassionato, he enjoys a special relationship with the world of celebrity, counting numerous stars among his muses and personal friends.

LIVE 4: PULL A WALL UP (BERLIN WALL) BY MASSIMO AGOSTINELLI

PULL A WALL UP (BERLIN WALL)

*Medium: White Matte Ink on Black Acrylic Mirror (Silk Screen) 155 x 120 cm
Special Edition of 1. (2014). AGOM-0005*

Agostinelli exhibited the 'Palindromes' series in an effort to reflect the concept of history repeating itself. 'PULL A WALL UP' depicts the Berlin Wall being constructed in 1961 while a West German policeman stands watch in order to halt the flight of economic and political refugees to the west. Fast-forward 50 years and Europe finds itself in a similar predicament. Walls are being constructed and pulled up along borders in an attempt to prevent immigration. This constant divide and compartmentalization in an attempt to separate ourselves from political strife has brought society and the civilised world to reflect on its very foundations. Agostinelli's use of acrylic mirror is a stark reminder of that raw reflection.

Massimo Agostinelli (b.1987) is an American Italian, London born emerging contemporary artist represented by Hus Gallery and the Hoerel Guggenheim Gallery. Agostinelli primarily focuses on word play; text art with a diverse range of mediums, best known for the 'Palindromes' and 'Anagrams' series.

LIVE 5: NEW FLAG FOR A NEW COUNTRY / BLUE AND ORANGE BY JANNIS VARELAS

Jannis Varelas

New Flag for a New Country/blue and orange, 2015 Oil, oil stick, acrylic, permanent marker, gesso on canvas

Dimensions 200x200cm

The piece New Flag for a New Country/blue and orange is part of the artist's last series of large scale paintings whose main intention is to map a maximalist system of recording and shaping the notion of absent-mindedness. This concept is directly opposed to the ideological prescripts of neo-liberalism today. It is in essence a proposal juxtaposed to the notions of competitiveness, concentration and efficiency and productivity. The context shaped here conveys the intention of the artist to produce an aesthetic treaty outside of the rational commands of a production process. It is organized as an ensemble of notes, for the final result to be understood as the general imprint of a creative behaviour.

The artist is not interested in the organization of a fictional model that will function as a narrative structure, rather than the process of depicting a parallel negotiation that starts from the conventional reality and through the actual procedure of artistic production, leads to a parallelism also captured here.

The resulting process is an irrational way of expression that aims to stay tuned with an intuitive perception of reality. The narrative does not exist as an objective stake, only as a recollection or a thing heard amiss, like the sounds of a lecture that are transformed in the ears of an absent minded student, who at the same time scratches his desk, into something illogical but simultaneously essentially real.

Jannis Varelas (b. 1977) lives and works between Los Angeles, Vienna and Athens and is a graduate of the Royal College of Art in London (MFA) and the Athens School of Fine Arts (BA). Selected solo shows include: "Sleep My Little Sheep Sleep", Contemporary Arts Center of Cincinnati, Ohio, curated by Xenia Kalpaksoglou (2012); "The Oblong Box", Kunsthalle Athena, Athens, curated by Marina Fokidis in collaboration with Jannis Varelas (2011); "Brandybell Series" Autocenter, Berlin (2010); "Blue Soldier-Opera Costumes", The Breeder, Athens (2009).

Selected group shows include: "Paper – works from the Saatchi Collection", Saatchi Gallery, London (2013); "Hell As Pavilion", Palais de Tokyo, Paris, curated by Nadja Argyropoulou (2013); "DESTE Prize 2011", Museum of Cycladic Art, Athens (2011); "Skin Fruit: Selections from The Dakis Joannou Collection", curated by Jeff Koons, New Museum, New York (2010); "Lebt und arbeitet in Wien III: Stars in a Plastic Bag", Kunsthalle Wien, curated by Xenia Kalpaksoglou, Raphaela Platow, Olga Sviblova and Angela Stief (2010); Cairo Biennial, curated by Ehab Ellaban (2010); New Orleans Biennial Prospect 1, curated by Dan Cameron, New Orleans (2008); "Destroy Athens", 1st Athens Biennial, curated by Xenia Kalpaktzoglou, Poka Yio and Augustine Zenakos, Athens (2007)

LIVE 6: UNIVERSE AT AN AGE OF ABOUT 2 BILLION YEARS PRINTS BY THOMAS SARACENO

Universe at an age of about 2 billion years

Set of 3 C-prints, ed. 2/5

2 @ 37.5cm x 50cm

1 @ 50cm x 67cm

executed in 2005

Tomas Saraceno is known for his sculptural work and installations. He was the winner of the Calder Prize and was the artist-in-residence at the International Space Studies Program of NASA in 2009. He presented at the 53rd Venice Biennale in 2009 as part of the group exhibition Fari Mondi//Making Worlds, curated by Daniel Birnbaum, and in 2012 constructed the installation Cloud City on the roof of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. His work is currently presented at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, Miami Art Museum, Museum für Moderne Kunst in Frankfurt, San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, and the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, among others.

The photographic series Universe at an age of about 2 billion years exemplify Tomás Saraceno's interest in astronomical bodies of our own origins and their different temporalities, graspable only via artistic thinking and imagination. Further explored and iterated in the celebrated installation Galaxies Forming Along Filaments, Like Droplets Along the Strands of a Spider's Web, presented at the 53rd Venice Biennial, the conceptual grasp of the work is grounded on the semblance between three dimensional nets of spiders, and scientific visualisations depicting the formation of the universe, known as the cosmic web.

LOT 16: AN EXCLUSIVE TOUR OF THE ELEUTHERNA EXCAVATION SITE IN CRETE

The Museum of Cycladic Art and its Director Professor Stampolidis offers an exclusive tailor made experience at his excavation site in Eleutherna in Crete in the summer 2016. The experience will depend on how much time the bidder can dedicate and his/her level of interest and engagement in archaeology.

The position of Ancient Eleutherna in the heart of Crete, in the west of Knossos in the east of Phaistos gave it many advantages. In fact, it had (probably) two ports. What is more, the ports, harbor dues and perhaps the city's own vessels would certainly have been another source of wealth in addition to the produce of the land; and would have therefore come into contact with foreigners. All these factors probably worked together to bring about the open social structure of the Geometric and Proto-Archaic periods, which was largely responsible for Eleutherna's relations with other regions not only in Crete but also in the Peloponnese, Attica, the Aegean islands, Asia Minor, the Syrian-Palestinian coast and Egypt. During the last twenty-seven years of excavations by the University of Crete that cover the wider site of the city – a total area of about four square kilometers. Various sections of the ancient city have been excavated so far, the public and the private buildings, sanctuaries and cemeteries, that reveals the human presence and later the habitation from the 3rd millennium BC until the early 14th c. AD. The excavations brought to light thousands artefacts of stone, clay, iron, bronze, gold, ivory, glass and faience. So far the city's wealth can be divided in three long spells of prosperity: the period of the Homeric epics (9th, 8th and 7th centuries BC), the Graeco-Roman period and the Early Christian period. Thus Eleutherna, in sharp contrast to the great archaeological sites elsewhere in Crete where Minoan palaces have been excavated, bears eloquent witness to the continuity of the island's prosperity through the so-called Dark Ages and its involvement in the 'dawning' of Greek civilization. The results of the excavations to date can contribute to our study of the history of Crete both during the island's so-called Dark Ages (11th–9th c. BC) and in its 'Period of Silence' of the Archaic and Classical periods (6th and 5th c. BC), besides adding a great deal to our knowledge of the public, social and private life, spatial organization, interstate treaties, laws, religion, economy and art of the succeeding periods (Classical, Hellenistic, Roman and Early Byzantine). (The bidder would need to arrange accommodation and transportation to the site)

LOT 17: WINE TASTING FOR 6 PEOPLE AT COMPAGNIE DES VINS SURNATURELS

Offering an exclusive wine tasting for six people with Julia Oudill, sommelier and general manager at Compagnie des Vins Surnaturels. The class will be held within the private atelier above Compagnie Delicatessen (6 Neal's Yard), opened alongside Compagnie des Vins Surnaturels, the delicatessen which boasts hundreds of wines hand selected by Julia Oudill and fine foods to take home, including French cheese & charcuterie.

Through her work, Julia aims to engage a new generation of oenophile, that seek quality and originality over big names, accessibility over elitism and a relaxed drinking and dining experience over excessive formality. During her studies at the catering university of Talence (near Bordeaux) she won the Chapoutier contest which resulted in the title 'The Best student sommelier of France'. After which she got her first job and she was hired as sommelier rather than an assistant sommelier in Alain Dutournier's restaurant, "Le Carré des Feuillants" (2 Michelin Stars). It was a great accomplishment regarding her youth and has never been seen before.

JEWELLERY

LOT 38: NIKOS KOULIS V COLLECTION WHITE GOLD EARRINGS WITH WHITE DIAMONDS AND BLUE SAPPHIRES

Nikos Koulis is a Greek designer with a sharp outlook and an authentic passion for jewels. Following his family tradition in the gem wholesale market, he studied Gemology and Glyptography in the Gemological Institute of America and created his own brand, Nikos Koulis Jewels, in 2006, showcasing a distinguished aesthetic profile and a profound crafting ethos in jewelry making.

Characterized by an elaborate technique and austere craftsmanship, Koulis experiments with bold materials and seeks for diversity in terms of shape and design. The common denominator of his work is the transformation of the classic through a contemporary angle, revisiting diachronic staples in an intricate way and creating pieces with long lasting value and edgy aesthetic appeal beyond the boundaries of fashion.

Nikos Koulis Jewels brand takes part in the International Fine Jewelers Exhibition Baselworld since 2011, as well as Couture Las Vegas since 2012, where field experts and buyers appraise it internationally. Nikos Koulis won the 2015 Couture Design Award in the Bridal Category with his first bridal collection, Oui, recognized for his innovative signature style. As an outcome of this, his pieces can be found in key stores in 18 cities around the world. In June of 2014 Nikos Koulis opened his first conceptual boutique in Mykonos and in September of the same year he launched his flagship boutique in Athens, creating an instant international sensation with the distinct aesthetic of both spaces.

LOT 40: 18K GOLD, DIAMOND, AND SEMI-PRECIOUS GEMSTONE EARRINGS MADE BY MARCIA MOR

These earrings are composed of diamonds, imperial topaz and nude-coloured amazonite. Both of these gemstones are rare in their form, colour, and in their weight. The most sought after of the topaz stones is imperial topaz due to its rich golden colour, and amazonite usually comes in a blue-green form, from the Amazon river – which people have accounted for its blue-green colour. However, in Brazil, it can be found in its rarest form, a nude colour from higher copper compounds and is very sensitive to heat and pressure, hence the difficulty in making into jewelry. The total carats in this pair of earrings are 0.06 carats of diamonds, 67 carats of nude amazonite and 31 carats of imperial topaz, encrusted in 18K gold.

Show-stopping pieces made in Brazil, with the stones sourced in Brazil and designed by Marcia Mor. Marcia is a renowned jewelry designer who makes pieces for H Stern and other esteemed jewelers as well as selling under her own brand. These earrings are composed of nude amazonite and imperial topaz, encrusted in 18K gold.

Kindly donated by Marcia Mor and Stephanie Margaronis on behalf of Blaiz Ltd (www.blaiz.co.uk)

LOT 43: THE WHITE QUEEN EARRINGS BY VANESSA PEDERZANI

A pair of 18kt white gold and white diamonds snowflakes earcuff. The White Queen collection is a tale about Mother Nature's perfection. Like every woman, a snowflake is born with its unique shape. Not one is similar. Each one is beautiful and perfect.

Milan-born, London-based jewellery designer Vanessa Pederzani uses jewellery as a canvas to tell the highs and lows of her life story. A trained gemologist who honed her expertise at Pederzani Jewellery, her family business founded in Milan in 1947, and then at Christie's and Sotheby's, before striking out on her own, Pederzani exercises a unique approach. Her passion for colour in gemstones far surpasses her fears of imperfections. She is at ease working with a diamond packed with inclusions if the stone's resounding beauty and colour are the right fit for the jewel.

LOT 45: ELEUTERI 18 KT WHITE GOLD OBLONG PENDANT

An amusing 18 kt white gold oblong pendant, highlighted by round cut diamonds with tassel finials, suspending a diamond pave' set star. Italy, circa 1960.

The prestige of Eleuteri dates back to 1896, when the elegant café was opened in Via del Gambero in Rome, just off the Spanish Steps. It soon became one of the most renowned gastronomic settings of the country thanks to its original selections of eclectic patisserie. Pietro Eleuteri's passion was that of collecting arts, which inspired his son Carlo to move within the spectrum of extravaganza, from pastry to antiques, then specializing in vintage jewels. Today, Eleuteri is undisputedly regarded as Italy's primary vintage and antique jewelry destination, boasting clientele from the Italian aristocracy to the international jet set.

ELEUTERI

ROMA 1896

Collections of exclusive jewels by esteemed houses like Bulgari, Cartier and Van Cleef & Arpels sparkle inside the cabinets alongside 18th century Southern Italian coral items, rare silverware and baubles shining with the million hues of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and more, in a setting charged with prominent ancient and modern works of art.

The company's historical headquarters are in Rome's most eminent address, Via Condotti, while the other Eleuteri boutiques can be found in the high end shopping streets of Milan, Venice, Florence, and Cortina, as well as in New York, where Eleuteri set base at 19 East 69th Street. The firm is often mentioned in worldwide remarkable magazines being recognised for its eclectic and trendsetting role within the industry. As per tradition, Wagner and Etrusca, respectively Carlo's first son and daughter, have approached the family business as the fourth generation proudly carrying forward the Eleuteri heritage.

- Our traditional Balinese hand-woven, ikat sarongs are 100% cotton. This style comes in white. The family in Bali who weave these sarongs are the last remaining artisans who produce these sarongs in cotton. These are not your typical holiday find – replicas are virtually impossible to come by. Use yours as a beach towel or wrap around as a skirt or a dress for a post-swim lunch. Alternatively, use as a scarf to add a pop of colour to a city look.
- Multicoloured handwoven cotton bag featuring shoulder strap and tasseled drawstring fastening. Each mochila is totally one of a kind – you will never see two exactly the same. These mochilas are handwoven in Colombia by female members of the indigenous Wayuu tribe using techniques passed down for centuries from generation to generation. Each of the mochilas have a design of their own which represents the weaver's method of keeping traditional Wayuu art and weaving traditions alive. Look out for the bottom of each mochila as they feature intricate symbolic designs chosen by the weaver as a means of self-representation. The adorable mini mochila is the perfect small size to take out in the evening to fit just your essentials. Enjoy owning a one-of-a-kind bag that no one else owns!
- Short-sleeved leopard patterned kaftan in striking green and white contrast. 100% cotton. Hand selected from traditional Moroccan artisans for their unique and eye-catching style, these particular pieces are hard to come by and much loved by local women.

LOT 75: WE ARE LEONE CLOTHING

The We Are Leone sisters would like to offer two pieces from their SS16 collection with any bespoke initials or wording of their choice.

Ruby and Tallulah Rufus Isaacs are two sisters born in Los Angeles, raised in Rome and based in London. With both of the girls traveling constantly they found themselves always turning to the same pieces that they were able to wear to beach/city and from night/to day. Pieces they threw over jeans or a little black dress to make any outfit special or different. These soon became their most coveted pieces and ones they swapped between the two of them. After a decade of them both working in all aspects of fashion, they decided to combine their expertise and create a line dedicated to the perfect travel essentials and the ultimate wardrobe staples. All one size, sourced from the most beautiful Italian silks and produced by the best Italian craftsmen – We Are Leone came to be. It has since been heralded by Vogue as one of the most exciting summer brands to look out for and has been worn by the likes of Selena Gomez, Miranda Kerr, Naomi Campbell, Gigi Hadid and Behati Prinsloo.
